INTRODUCTION

This List of Publications of the Agriculture Department, 1862-1902, with analytical index, is the first of the series of contributions toward a Bibliography of United States public documents, which will deal with the publications of all the Executive Departments and other independent publishing offices of the Government. Separate lists of the publications of each of these Departments and offices will be issued from time to time as completed, and will be supplied to State and Territorial libraries, designated depositories, and other libraries as far as the limited edition will admit. Librarians are invited to point out errors and to make suggestions for consideration prior to the consolidation of the complete work.

I desire to express my sincere thanks for the assistance rendered by Mr. George William Hill, Chief of the Publications Division, and Mr. Robert B. Handy, assistant in charge of the document section, Agriculture Department.

L. C. FERRELL,
Superintendent of Documents.

OCTOBER 13, 1903.

PREFACE

Though next to the youngest of the Executive Departments of the United States Government, and its work having been for years impeded by lack of interest on the part of Congress, the publications of the Agriculture Department rank second to none in number and usefulness.

From a doubtful experiment, with an annual report as its only publication, the Department has developed into a great publishing office, the output of which is eagerly sought by those engaged in agricultural inquiry.

The constant changes in the personnel of the various divisions composing the Department, the growing need and gradual extension of investigations, necessitated in a degree, and at least satisfactorily explain, the otherwise incomprehensible peculiarities and confused methods which characterize the publications of the various bureaus and offices and of the Department as a whole.

FORMER LISTS.

As early as 1867 a general index was made to the annual reports from 1862 to that date (A1.1:867, p. 473), and a still more elaborate index, 1837-1876 (including the agricultural reports made through the Patent Office from 1837-1861), was issued in 1879 (A1.8:14), with a supplement bringing the work down to 1885, printed in 1886 (A1.8:42); but it was not until 1894 that a list of the miscellaneous publications appeared (A1.8:55), and that included only the publications for the five years from 1889 to 1893, being simply a consolidated reprint of the lists which had been a feature of the annual reports of the Secretary for those years.

In 1896 another index to the annual reports, 1837-1893, was printed (A21.3:1), in the preface to which the former attempts to index the reports are characterized as "so unsatisfactory for the purpose for which they were designed as to have fallen into almost complete disuse." While it is not doubted that this index was of great service, it still left the problem of the miscellaneous publications unsolved, and it was therefore gratifying when, toward the latter end of the same year, the first list including these publications was issued.

This checklist, including all the publications from 1841 to June 30, 1895 (A17.3:9), and giving a decimal classification for the convenience of those who wished to "keep their files of Government publications apart from their general collection of books," served to emphasize the necessity for a complete catalogue of the publications therein enumerated, and formed a working basis in collecting the set of publications of the Agriculture Department in the library of the office of the Superintendent of Documents, which is now the most complete set of such publications in existence.

In 1898 an author index to all the publications of the Department, 1841-1897, was printed (A21.3:4). Much valuable information was necessarily omitted from this work on account of the limitations of a strictly "author index," which debarred some important publications that failed to bear their authors' names.

The latest attempt to supply the much-needed reference list was a "List by titles from 1840 to June, 1901," issued in 1902 (A21.3:6). It was but an elaboration of the checklist of 1896, and while more complete, presented the matter in an equally awkward form for quick reference use.

It is hoped that the present list, combining both methods used by its predecessors, the checklist and the index forms, will prove a satisfactory reference work and lead the searcher quickly to the desired publication.

CLASSIFICATION EXPLAINED.

With the establishment of the office of the Superintendent of Documents, by the provisions of the printing act of January 12, 1895, a new era in the history of public documents was inaugurated. Not only did the office at once undertake the tasks of cataloguing and indexing imposed upon it by law, but in its establishment as a great clearing house for the publications of the Government it became necessary to keep a file of the publications for reference use. In the beginning no definite idea could be formed of the extent of such a collection, and no one dreamed of the magnitude of the work undertaken when it was decided to collect and classify a library strictly governmental in character.

As it was seen to be impossible to arrange such a large and uncertain collection of special publications by either the "decimal" or "expansive" system of library classification in general use, a governmental author arrangement was adopted, corresponding in the main to the classification applied by Miss Adelaide R. Hasse to the publications of the Agriculture Department in a list issued by the Department in 1895.

It was soon found that this classification, however adequate for a single Department, was not capable of meeting the needs of a great library of Government literature, and a new classification became a necessity.

It was no simple matter to devise a system of classification elastic enough to meet the needs of such a mass of unrelated matter as necessarily forms a library of United States public documents, nor to foresee, though aided by the fruits of the former experience, the many inconsistencies and incongruities against which to guard. Decimal, alphabetical, numerical, chronological, author, subject, and serial methods of classification were experimented with, until at last the present system, a combination of various schemes, was decided upon as the most simple and usable, and its application to the Library has proven satisfactory in every way.

But if the task of applying an acceptable system to the books was hard, that of explaining it concisely and lucidly is certainly more difficult. In giving the following explanation of the method of classification for United States public documents, as it is now used in the Public Documents Library, which contains the largest collection of such publications, the hope is entertained that many of the large libraries may be led to use the scheme, thus insuring uniformity of classification, and making the lists of the various Departments, of which this work is the first, a direct index to the publications on their shelves.

The classification is by governmental authors: First, by Departments or independent publishing offices; second, by bureaus, offices, or divisions of such Departments or independent publishing offices.

Department symbol.

The first letter of the distinctive word in the title of each of the nine Executive Departments is used to designate the Department, and is written as the first term in the "classification number," as follows:

A = Agriculture Department.

C = Commerce and Labor Department.

I = Interior Department.

J = Justice Department.

N = Navy Department.

P = Post-Office Department.

S = State Department.

T = Treasury Department.

W = War Department.

In order that no conflict should arise between the Executive Departments notation and that of any of the independent publishing offices, two letters are used in all other notations, as follows:

- CS = Civil Service Commission.
- DC = District of Columbia.
- FC = Fish Commission.
- FS = Freedman's Savings and Trust Company.
- GN = Geographic Names Board.
- GP = Government Printing Office.
- IC = Interstate Commerce Commission.
- Ju = Judiciary (United States courts, etc.).
- La = Labor Department.
- LC = Library of Congress.
- NA = National Academy of Sciences.
- NH = National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers.
- Pr = President of United States.
- SI = Smithsonian Institution.

These two lists give the complete letter symbols, and the arrangement on the shelves is strictly alphabetical taking them as a whole. Of course, the publications of the Fish Commission and the Labor Department have since the 1st day of July, 1903, been classified among the publications of the Commerce and Labor Department, of which they are now bureaus, but their publications as separate publishing offices are left under the old classification.

Bureau, office, or division symbol.

A symbol having been supplied for the Departments and independent publishing offices, one for each of the bureaus, offices, and divisions of such Departments or publishing offices was next considered.

The figure 1 following the Department or independent publishing office symbol was fixed upon to represent the Secretary of the Department or the chief executive officer of any of the independent publishing offices, and is always used for such, thus—

- A1 = Agriculture Department, Secretary's office.
- W1 = War Department, Secretary's office.
- GP1 = Government Printing Office, Public Printer's office.

Beginning with figure 2, the numbers are applied in numerical order to the various publishing bureaus, offices, and divisions, these having been arranged alphabetically when the classification was applied; new offices to be added at the end of the list of a Department and assigned the next number.

This of course does not provide for an alphabetical arrangement of the bureaus, offices, etc., in the future, but does furnish a distinctive symbol for each without limit.

A point is placed after this second symbol to separate the Department and bureau notation from the rest of the "classification number."

Examples:

A1. = Agriculture Department, Secretary's Office.

A2. = Agriculture Department, Accounts and Disbursements Division.

A3. = Agriculture Department, Agrostology Division.

A4. = Agriculture Department, Animal Industry Bureau.

T1. = Treasury Department, Secretary's Office.

T2. = Treasury Department, Appointments Division.

T3. = Treasury Department, Auditor for Treasury Department (First Auditor.)

T4. = Treasury Department, Auditor for War Department (Second Auditor.)

Series symbol.

Next to be considered was a symbol for the numerous series of publications which emanate from these various publishing offices. As substantially every Government publishing office issues an annual report, this annual report is considered to be the most important series in the publications of every office, and figure 1 was therefore designated as the symbol for "annual reports," and written as the third term in a "classification number," following the point.

In like manner an arbitrary symbol, figure 2, is assigned to the numerous publications of a miscellaneous character which are not numbered or volumed in any series. Such sporadic issues have been called "general publications," and their symbol, figure 2, is written as the third term in a "classification number".

A majority of the publishing offices issue their publications numbered in series called "bulletins" or "circulars" or both; the terms being applied without any regularity as to size or character of the works thus numbered. The figure 3 for "bulletins" and the figure 4 for "circulars" have been permanently assigned to these classes, to be written as the third term in a "classification number."

We now have figures 1, 2, 3, and 4, when written after the point as the third term in a "classification number," permanently assigned as symbols, as follows:

.1 = Annual reports.

.2 = General publications.

.3 = Bulletins.

.4 = Circulars.

From this point the various series are arranged alphabetically as far as possible, assigned the numbers following indefinitely, and all new series as they come to hand are given the next number to be applied to a series, under the office from which they emanate.

Should an office fail to issue any of the four classes of publications here described, the numbers are left blank, and the numbering of such series as they may issue begins with figure 5.

Following the series symbol a colon is used to separate the series figure or figures from the characters used as individual "book numbers" to follow.

Examples:

A1. = Agriculture Department, Secretary's Office.

A1.1: = Agriculture Department, Secretary's Office, annual reports.

A1.2: = Agriculture Department, Secretary's Office, general publications.

A1.3: = Agriculture Department, Secretary's Office, bulletins.

A1.4: = Agriculture Department, Secretary's Office, circulars.

A1.5: = Agriculture Department, Secretary's Office, miscellaneous circulars.

A1.6: = Agriculture Department, Secretary's Office, special reports.

N6. = Navy Department, Hydrographic Office.

N6.1: = Navy Department, Hydrographic Office, annual reports.

N6.2: = Navy Department, Hydrographic Office, general publications.

N6.3: = Navy Department, Hydrographic Office, bulletins.

N6.4: = Navy Department, Hydrographic Office, circulars.

N6.5: = Navy Department, Hydrographic Office, catalogues and lists.

N6.6: = Navy Department, Hydrographic Office, corrections and additions.

N6.7: = Navy Department, Hydrographic Office [practical papers].

Book number.

An individual "book number" is all that is now needed to complete the classification. The symbols for this purpose are written after the colon as the fourth term in the "classification number." In the case of annual or periodical publications the date is used as the book number; for a volumed series the volume number is used, and in a numbered series the number. The works classified as "general publications" being without any of these distinctive features, it is found advisable to arrange them in alphabetical order under the most significant words of their titles, or under their subjects, and the Cutter Author Table symbols for such words are used as "book numbers."

Examples:

- A1.1:901 = Agriculture Dept., Secy's Office, annual report, 1901.
A1.1:902 = Same, 1902.
A1.2: = Agriculture Dept., Secy's Office, general publications.
A1.2:An4 = Angora. Notice of receipt of letter from Minister Terrell, relating to agriculture in Angora. November 1, 1893. (Circ.)
A1.2:L48 = Leave of absence not allowed to employees outside of Washington. October 21, 1896. (Circ.)
N6.8: = Navy Department, Hydrographic Office, publications (numbered).
N6.8:3 = [No. 3.] List of reported dangers to navigation in Pacific Ocean, whose positions are doubtful, or not found on charts in general use. 1866. 191 pp.
N6.8:40 = No. 40. Steam lanes across Atlantic; [by M. F. Maury.] 1872. 19 pp. 3 pl.
T14.5: = Treasury Department, Second Comptroller, decisions, digest of.
T14.5:1 = Volume 1. Compiled by George Chipman. 1852.
T14.5:2 = Volume 2, 1869-1884; compiled by R. J. Mitchell. 1885. 433 pp.

Superior letters and figures.

Two other very useful features of the classification need some explanation, namely, the use of the superior letter a (^a), and the superior figures (¹⁻⁹).

The superior letter always designates excerpts from the publication bearing the same notation without the (^a). The name adopted for these excerpts is "separates," and they are always designated by the superior (^a). These "separates" are arranged in classes by themselves, immediately following the series from which they are taken. In cases where the separates are from an annual report series it has often been found necessary to make two classes. The personal report of the chief, which usually appears in pamphlet form without the accompanying documents, is arranged and book-numbered by dates. The other class, scientific reports accompanying the report of the chief, is arranged alphabetically on the same plan as the "general publications."

Examples:

- A1.1:901 = Agriculture Department, Secretary's Office, annual report, 1901.
A1.1^a:901 = Agriculture Department, Secretary's Office, annual report, 1901 (separate).

Examples—Continued.

- N14.5:885 = Navy Department, Naval Observatory, Astronomical and Meteorological Observations, 1885.
N14.5^a:As8 = Same (separate). Astrophotographic Congress, International, etc.; by A. G. Winterhalter. 1889. (Reprint of Appendix 1, Astronomical and Meteorological Observations, 1885.)

The superior figures are used to differentiate between two publications which may of necessity be assigned the same symbol in the alphabetical classification, and also to distinguish between the various editions of the same serial or numbered publication.

Examples:

- A1.2: = Agriculture Dept., Secy's Office, general publications.
A1.2:Ag8¹ = Agricultural colleges. List of delegates and visitors to tenth annual convention of Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations, 1896. n. t. p. 3 pp.
A1.2:Ag8² = Agriculture Department. [Letter as to work and needs of Department of Agriculture; by William G. Le Duc.] February 27, 1880. n. t. p. 15 pp.
I16.5: = Interior Department, Education Bureau, Circulars of Information.
I16.5:875¹ = 1875, No. 1. Proceedings of Department of Superintendence of National Educational Association, Washington, D. C., January 27 and 28, 1875. 1875. 114 pp. 1 pl.
I16.5:875² = 1875, No. 2. Education in Japan; [by William E. Griffis and David Murray.] 1875. 64 pp.
N6.8: = Navy Department, Hydrographic Office, publications (numbered).
N6.8:90¹ = No. 90. Development of great circle sailing; by G. W. Littlehales. 1889. 53 pp. 5 pl. 1 map.
N6.8:90² = Same, 2d ed. 1889. 63 pp. 7 pl. 2 maps.

It will be seen that the system here presented is expansive enough to cover any number of departments, offices, series, or books, and that, too, in as concise a form as possible. A long or intricate classification number is not only hard to apply to a book, but it is difficult to remember in consulting the shelves, and it should therefore be as short and simple as possible. Certainly the numbers or symbols in the method herein described express a great deal in a limited space, and it is hard to conceive of a shorter method of expressing such a phrase as "Interior Department, Geological and Geographical Survey of the Territories (Hayden), Final reports, Volume 9," than by the accurate notation I18.5:9, which, when analyzed, exhibits a clear statement of the entire phrase: (1) Interior Department; (18) Geological and Geographical Survey of the Territories (Hayden); (.5) Final reports; (:9) Volume 9:=I18.5:9.

THE TABLES.

The Tables in this work are elaborated from the card shelf list used in this Library. All the necessary bibliographical information is appended to the entry of a publication or series, and no time or effort has been spared in the attempt to make these Tables present an accurate and complete list of all the publications of the Department from 1862, including all 1902 imprints.

When a publication was also issued as a Congressional document the Congressional reference is inserted after the entry for such publication in the Tables. In a few instances a single paper in a volume has been so issued, and in those cases it has been necessary to insert the Congressional reference in the Index.

Those publications which emanated from the Department, but which were issued only as Congressional documents, are listed chronologically in the Appendix to this work.

The titles in the Tables are exact copies of the title-pages of the publications with the omission of unnecessary articles. In case of "general publications" or other series which are classified alphabetically the subject words are introduced as headings and the title follows as it appears on the publication.

In counting the maps, plates, charts, etc., in a volume the total number has been stated as "plates," except in cases where the character of the illustration was plainly determined by numbering.

When the word circular "(circ.," appears at the end of an entry it indicates a one-page publication of uncertain size.

THE INDEX.

The Index, which forms the most important as well as the larger part of this work, has been carefully compiled with a view to quick reference to any special author, subject, or title. In dealing with a collection of publications differing so widely in their subject-matter, and for the most part of a scientific character, it has been found difficult to determine the best form of entry in many instances for papers with meaningless or strictly technical headings, especially when a reading of the paper by one unacquainted with the subject treated has proved equally unsatisfactory in suggesting a suitable title. There are doubtless omissions on account of these nondescript titles, which, to save time, have been used for the Index entries. Only where titles were found perfectly meaningless, as "A few facts from Florida" or "A popular experiment," has the article been read, the reason for which is clearly indicated by the statement that a complete collection of the publications of the Department includes about 3,500 books, pamphlets, and circulars of from 1 to 1,500 pages each, some of which contain fifty or more distinct papers.

The Index entries to the volumes listed are in many cases greatly abbreviated, as the full title and all information concerning the publication can be obtained from the entry in the Tables, but in the case of analytical references the full title as given in the document has been entered, in order to convey as much information as possible.

In analyzing the annual reports of the chiefs of the various bureaus or offices, only papers distinct from the main report, or which, if included, have an individual author, are brought out in the Index, the various subheads in the reports not being noted.

When a date does not appear in an entry in the Index it indicates that there is more than one edition or print of the article indexed, except in cases of undated publications, where a date could not be given, or of annual report analyticals, where the date appears as the book number.

CONCLUSION.

The greatest drawback to systematic classification and ready reference was the vast number of miscellaneous unnumbered publications. An endeavor has been made in this list to classify in distinct series, as far as possible, this unwieldy mass, and to that end numbers have been assigned and series formed and named, or they were numbered in either the series "bulletins" or "circulars" when these series were not already filled.

There is no well-defined definition for either "bulletin" or "circular" as applied to public documents, as witnessed by the fact that the series of numbered "circulars" in the Surgeon-General's office, War Department, contains both large quarto volumes and one-page letters, while the circulars of other offices are single sheets of many varying sizes, and of some of the scientific bureaus of the Agriculture Department are small pamphlets. In assigning numbers in this list, however, the series of "bulletins" have been filled with the more important pamphlet publications, and the series "circulars," made up of the ephemeral or smaller works, generally of one-page letters.

The unnecessary multiplication of numbers on the title pages, especially of the publications of the Agriculture Department, is a subject which does not lend itself to easy explanation, if indeed there is any reason in it, and no account, therefore, has been taken in this list of the various "whole numbers" of the divisions, nor the "serial numbers" of certain classes of literature, which form a confused jumble of unintelligible characters on the title-pages of so many of the Department's pamphlets.

If the publications of each publishing office could be confined within the two series "bulletins" and "circulars," for which provision is made under each office in the classification; or if, in case of continued issues, they could be given a series title and series number of their own, such series title and series number to appear on the title-page (not on the cover or in the back title) of each publication, much of the confusion and oft-complained-of "multiplication of numbering" would be done away with.

Another great boon to librarians would be the adoption by the Department of a "whole number," to be assigned to all publications of the Department, no-matter by which bureau issued, serially in the order of issue, printed in small type in an inconspicuous place on the title-page, or at the heading of an article, and applied without reservation to everything issued which the Department considers a "publication." This "whole number," however, not to supersede the series numbers of the publishing bureaus, but to take the place of all other title-page numbers.

In compiling lists of the publications of the Departments, everything issued by a Department, except circular letters and cards and notices of a purely office character, should be listed; and yet it is found in many instances almost impossible to determine what the Department considers a "publication," serially numbered issues being of but a temporary character, while an unnumbered card or circular may be of importance, and if discarded would be regarded as a serious omission.

"Whole numbers" are now used by many of the publishing offices to designate a certain class of literature, but to be of practical value the number must be applied by the Department, and should appear on everything issued which it considers a "publication." Librarians could then easily keep track of the publications and be sure when they had them all, whereas now no one knows what constitutes a complete set of the publications of any of the great Departments.

A carefully assorted and beautifully bound collection of many of the publications of the Department, which proved of great value in compiling this list, is safely entombed in a vault in the grounds of the Department; its library has a fair representation of the publications; while most of the scientific bureaus retain files of at least the last editions of their works; but in no one place, nor in all combined, does the Department possess anything like a complete file of its valuable literature. This, however, is not surprising, for in all the well-equipped libraries of the various Departments it is most discouraging to note the dearth of publications of the Departments themselves, a fact which should certainly be remedied.

Every bureau and office in the Department has been visited and private files searched in the endeavor to make this list complete, and it is hoped it will prove a satisfactory substitute for a catalogue of the Department's publications.

A. AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT

[By an appropriation for the collection of agricultural statistics, March 3, 1839, an agricultural section was established in the Patent Office. The section continued until May 15, 1862, when it was made a separate Department, though it was not until February 9, 1889, that it was raised to the dignity of a Cabinet office.]

AI.1: Annual reports

[The annual report on agriculture began in 1837 with a two-page statement in the report of Henry L. Ellsworth, Commissioner of Patents. From that date to 1861 it formed a part of the report of the Commissioner of Patents, making a separate volume after 1849.

In 1862 the Department of Agriculture was established and its annual report was uniformly issued up to 1893. Beginning with the report for 1894, in accordance with paragraph 2, section 73, of the printing act of January 12, 1895, the report has been prepared in two volumes, one containing the Secretary's report and the purely executive reports of the several chiefs of bureaus, divisions, and offices; the other, known as the Yearbook (AI.10:), embracing the Secretary's report and a collection of special articles on agricultural science.

The title of the head of the Department was Commissioner of Agriculture until 1889, when he became Secretary of Agriculture and a member of the Cabinet.

References to the various reports and scientific papers contained in this series of annual reports will be found under their proper headings in the Index to this work.

A6.5: Contributions from U. S. national herbarium

[The U. S. National Herbarium, founded by the Smithsonian Institution, was transferred to the Agriculture Department in 1868, and returned to the custody of the Smithsonian Institution, July 1, 1896. The Agriculture Department, however, continued to publish this series of botanical reports until July 1, 1902, when, in pursuance of an act of Congress, the National Museum assumed the responsibility of the publication.]

A10.1²: Annual reports of Office of Experiment Stations (to Congress)

[By provision of the act establishing experiment stations in connection with the agricultural colleges in the various states and territories, approved Mar. 2, 1887, the stations were required to send to the governors of their respective states or territories, for transmission to the Secretary of Agriculture, on or before February 1st of each year, a statement of their receipts and expenditures, with an outline of the work accomplished.

It was not, however, until the approval of the Agricultural appropriation act of Aug. 8, 1894, that provision was made for sending to Congress an annual report based upon these returns. The report for the fiscal year 1895, the one called for in the act, was laid before the Senate Apr. 7, 1896, and referred to the Committee on Printing, who reported a concurrent resolution providing for its publication as a document, with 2,000 additional copies for the use of the Agriculture Department. The resolution passed the Senate but did not receive the sanction of the House, and the report therefore was never printed.

The second report, 1896, called for by Congress, was printed as S. doc. 137, 54th Cong., 2d sess.; serial no. 3470.

The third report, 1897, was printed as H. doc. 205, 55th Cong., 2d sess.; serial no. 3667, and also as Bulletin no. 50, Experiment Stations Office.

The fourth report, 1898, was printed as H. doc. 121, 55th Cong., 3d sess.; serial no. 3768, and also as Bulletin no. 61, Experiment Stations Office.

The fifth report, 1899, was printed as H. doc. 500, 56th Cong., 1st sess.; serial no. 3929, and also as Bulletin no. 83, Experiment Stations Office.

The sixth report, 1900, was printed as H. doc. 336, 56th Cong., 2d sess.; serial no. 4116, and also as Bulletin no. 93, Experiment Stations Office.

The seventh report, 1901, the first to be published as an "annual report of the Office of Experiment Stations," was also printed as H. doc. 334, 57th Cong., 1st sess.; serial no. 4301.

Future reports will be issued in conformity with this latter method and will include, besides the receipts and expenditures, reports of the Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico Experiment Stations, which are under the direct supervision of the Office; reports on Investigations on Irrigation and on the nutrition of man, and on Agricultural Education and the Farmers' Institutes.]

A10.6: Experiment station record

[In the first three volumes of the Record the abstracts of the station reports were grouped by stations, arranged alphabetically by States. Beginning with Vol. 4, an arrangement by topics was adopted, each topic being edited by the department's expert in that line. The various topics usually treated in agricultural publications are all represented. With but few exceptions each number also contained a paper by some noted authority on a particular subject.]

A10.6*: Experiment station record (separates)

[The papers mentioned in the note under A10.6: were each issued separately. References to them will be found under the proper headings in the index to this work.]

A10.7: Food and diet charts

- 1 No. 1. 1896.
 2 No. 2. 1896.
 3 No. 3. 1896.
 4 No. 4. 1896.

A10.8: Irrigation investigation schedules

- 1 No. 1. [Postal card for collection of statistics.] n. d.
 2 No. 2. Duty of water, general instructions to observers; by Elwood Mead. March 1, 1899. n. t. p. 4 pp.
 3 No. 3. [Circular letter and blank form for answers to queries.] n. d. 2 sheets.
 4 No. 4. [Circular letter and blank form for answers to queries.] May 1, 1899. 4 sheets.

- 1 No. 1. Chickens and their diseases in Hawaii; by T. F. Sedgwick. 1901. 23 pp.
 2 No. 2. Root rot of taro; by T. F. Sedgwick, Honolulu, Hawaii, Hawaiian Gazette Company, 1902. 21 pp.

A10.10: Alaska agricultural experiment stations bulletins

- 1 No. 1. Suggestions to pioneer farmers in Alaska; by C. C. Georgeson. 1902. n. t. p. 15 pp. 7 pl.

A10.11: Experiment station work (volumes)

- 1 Vol. 1. Experiment station work, vol. 1, including Experiment station work I-XX (Farmers' bulletins 56, 65, 69, 73, 78, 79, 84, 87, 92, 97, 103, 105, 107, 114, 119, 122, 124, 133, 144, 149). 1902. xiv+[628]+xviii pp.

[Title-page, table of contents, index, and glossary for this volume were issued as a pamphlet of xiv+xviii pages in order that the 20 numbers of Experiment station work which had been issued as Farmers' bulletins (A1.9:) might be brought together. As each bulletin bears its own paging, the references in the index are somewhat awkward; but in future provision will be made for the volumes by issuing an extra edition of the Farmers' bulletins which contain the numbers of Experiment station work, without the bulletin numbers and with continuous paging.]

[Abstract of Misc. series, Bull. No. 9. See A27.8:9.]

A27.9: Statistical reports

[Contains reports on condition of crops, and special subjects of interest to farmers. Issued as "Monthly" or "Bi-monthly Report" of Department from May, 1863, to December, 1876, when the series was discontinued and the issue of the statistical matter was transferred to the series of "Special Reports" (A1.6) and there appeared under various numbers, not always consecutive, from Jan., 1877, to Sept., 1883. Another change was made in October, 1883, when "New Series, Report no. 1," appeared containing the crop statistics. This last series was continued, consecutively numbered, up to no. 155, December, 1897. No. 156 was issued April 20, 1899. From May, 1898, to April, 1900, the statistics were issued in a "Crop circular" (A27.5). Beginning with May, 1900, they were merged into the "Crop Reporter" (A27.6) which is now being issued. A "Synoptical index" of this series was issued by the Department in 1897 (A21.3:2), but as it did not give a table of the various reports of the Statistician, indexed under the comprehensive title "Reports of the Statistician," it can not be definitely determined whether the present collation includes all or more than the index. All reports of the Statistician relative to crops and farm animals have, however, been included. The volume numbers are assigned to the yearly groups of reports to facilitate listing and reference.]

A29.6: Monthly weather review (separates)

[Some of the more important articles in the Review were issued separately in pamphlet form.]

A29.7: Climate and crop bulletin (broadside)

[The Climate and Crop Bulletin is issued weekly from April to September during the season of planting, cultivating, and harvesting of crops, and monthly from October to March. The title "Climate and Crop Bulletin" was adopted February, 1896, the bulletin having been previously issued under the title "Weather-Crop Bulletin." This publication deals with the general weather and crop conditions of the United States, while bulletins showing more detailed information for the several States are issued from the central stations of 43 climate and crop centers. A Climate and Crop Bulletin of the cotton region, dealing more particularly with the weather conditions affecting the cotton crop, is published weekly at New Orleans from about May 1 to the latter part of October. Cotton Region Bulletins containing temperature and rainfall observations reported by telegraph from about 150 stations in the Southern States are issued daily from 12 district centers in the cotton belt from April 16 to October 31. Corn and Wheat Region Bulletins, identical in character with the preceding, are issued daily from 9 district centers in the corn and wheat belt from April 1 to September 30. Fruit and Wheat Bulletins, also identical, are issued from San Francisco during June, July, and August.]

A29.18: Weather map (broadside)

[This publication, issued at the Weather Bureau in Washington, is the only Government publication issued every day in the year, Sundays and holidays included. At 94 stations of the Weather Bureau smaller weather maps are issued daily, except Sundays and holidays. At 18 of the less important stations bulletins, containing practically the same meteorological data that appear on the weather maps, are issued.

To an extent permitted by the editions, the maps and bulletins are furnished free of charge to business and commercial exchanges, corporations, firms, individuals, and educational institutions that will display them for the benefit of the public or use them for educational purposes.]

[Issued by Signal Office, tri-daily from Jan. 1, 1871, 7:35 a. m., to June 30, 1888; semi-daily, July 1, 1888, to June 30, 1891.]

INDEX TO THE TABLES

When the consulter finds in this index an entry which interests him, let him note the reference figures or "classification number" opposite such entry, then turn to the same figures in the "Tables" which form the first part of this work. These will easily be found, because they are arranged in numerical order from 1 to the end. Having turned in the Tables to the figures of the index entry, there will be found a complete statement of the number, series, bureau, etc., by which the publication indexed is known, and also its exact title and history.

For a full explanation of the "classification numbers" used as reference figures in this index, see pp. 8-15, without a careful perusal of which the best results can not be obtained in using this index.
